

TREE STUDY DAY

edited by Thomas Bisiani and Adriano Venudo

Introduction

Adriano Venudo

From the Roots to Cosimo Piovasco Rondò: Living in the Trees
Mariacristina D'Oria

Clearing

Elisabetta Nascig

Forest

Victory Humans

Spinning

Mariacristina D'Oria

Vito Acconci's trees

Alex Ferletti

A short history (of art) through the tree

Michela Lupieri

Drawing a tree

Alessio Bortot

lunch break

Trees like us?

Pierluigi Martorana

Conclusions

Thomas Bisiani

Followed by a seminar by agronomist Pierluigi Martorana

Tuesday, March 17, 2026

from 10:00 to 18:00

Room 401

University Center of Gorizia

Via Alviano 18, 34170 Gorizia

For information: avenudo@units.it, tbisiani@units.it

Man's relationship with nature cannot be conceived in a reductionist or disjointed manner.

Edgar Morin

Imagination is a tree. It has the integrating virtues of a tree. It is roots and branches. It lives between earth and sky. It lives in the earth and the wind. The imagined tree imperceptibly becomes the cosmological tree, the epitome of a universe, the creator of a universe.

Gaston Bachelard

